UPDATE (TATA POWER)

IIT Bhubaneswar Releases Study on Tata Power led Central Odisha Discom's Power Distribution Reforms

The Indian Institute of Technology (IIT) Bhubaneswar has released a study on the power distribution performance of TP Central Odisha Distribution Limited (TPCODL), a joint venture of Tata Power and Government of Odisha, examining how network reliability, operational efficiency, technological interventions and customer service delivery have evolved over a five-year period following distribution sector reforms. The study evaluates the outcomes of sustained capital investment, network modernisation and the progressive adoption of digital technologies in the distribution network. The study has been prepared by Prof. Chandrashekhar Bhende (Professor), Dr. Chandrasekhar Perumalla (Associate Professor) and Dr. Abhineet Prakash (Assistant Professor) from the Department of Electrical Engineering, School of Electrical & Computer Sciences, IIT Bhubaneswar. It assesses the performance of TPCODL, which serves a populace of 1.36 crore across 29,354 sq. km in Central Odisha. The analysis is based on field inspections, validation of system data and a review of operational and consumer service practices across both urban and rural areas. A key observation of the study is a significant reduction in outage duration, reflected in an improvement of approximately 50% in the System Average Interruption Duration Index (SAIDI) over the review period.
